

Leadership and Horse Sense

* discover the non-verbal advantage *

Your professional success is tightly linked to your use and knowledge of body language – whether you know it or not.

Leaders who know how to accurately de-code the silent signals of others, and who are able to use body language that is aligned with the messages they want to convey, gain a competitive advantage in business – no matter what business they're in!

Today's leaders must lead through influence rather than control. Influence relies on:

- The ability to understand another's perspective;
- Knowing how to read non-verbal messages; and
- The ability to communicate authentically.

In today's virtual world, visual technology is changing the way we do business with employees, partners, and colleagues all over.

Business professionals are now being viewed, as well as heard and read. Join Amanda, guest facilitator Pamela Ziemann, and the Epona Meadows herd to sharpen your non-verbal communication skills!

Dates – April 12, April 21, May 4

Location – Woodinville, Washington

No horse experience required. Limited space - register early.

Why horses?

The language of horses is the body. They are masters at reading non-verbal messages because their lives depend on it!

- You can't fake it with a horse;
- Horses directly reflect the people who handle them — they give instant feedback;
- Horses pick up messages that we miss, or are unaware of giving;
- Horses read all our emotions, including those below the surface.

benefits & results

Learn what it means to lead others by earned authority and not just a formal position or title. In this workshop you will:

- Gain greater awareness of your communication strengths and gaps.
- Discover how your nonverbal messages influence the way others perceive you as a leader.
- Learn how your nonverbal communication affects your relationships with others.
- Practice aligning your words with body language that supports – rather than sabotages - your message.

Amanda Madorno, Owner and Principal for Roam Consulting LLC, is a respected leadership coach, organizational consultant and interim executive. Her 15 years of experience with both for-profit and non-profit clients provides her with a depth and diversity of perspective that has helped leaders drive important personal and organization change. Amanda speaks nationally at Leadership Institutes and conferences around the country, and serves as adjunct faculty for Professional and Continuing Education at the University of Washington.

An accomplished and lifelong horsewoman, Amanda is an Approved Instructor in Equine Experiential Learning. Her specialized programs put leaders, work teams, and horses together to make breakthroughs in their leadership skills and competencies.

Pamela Ziemann is author of the award-winning book Giving Voice to Your Cause, an international speaker and communications trainer. For 15 years she has shared her expertise through an easy-to-learn program of interactive exercises and with an approach that focuses on the space between words. She has a playful way of daring each person to reveal his or her natural brilliance. Her clients become powerfully present and connected right from the start.

To overcome her own speech difficulties, Pamela spent a decade traveling and living all over the world. She combined this with a business degree and extensive communication training, and now works with leaders to facilitate full self-expression, understand body language and use active listening skills.
